Patty Hearst in Bank Robbery

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The FBI today sought Patricia Hearst as one of four rifle-toting women who held up a San Francisco bank Monday, shot two bystanders and escaped with more than $10,000.

Authorities said the 20-year-old kidnap victim may have been forced to participate against her will.

Miss Hearst was identified in pictures taken by a hidden bank camera. Kidnaped 10 weeks ago by the Symbionese Liberation Army, Miss Hearst, in a tape-recorded message, renounced her parents and her former life 13 days ago and said she was joining forces with her captors. She said she has changed her name to "Tania."

A warrant was issued for the arrest of Miss Hearst, a granddaughter of newspaper publisher William Randolph Hearst, as a material witness in the robbery.

"She may have been acting under duress and coercion," said FBI special agent in charge, Charles W. Bates, in explaining why she was sought as a material witness instead of a participant. Three other women were named as suspects, and police said five men apparently also were involved — four of them waiting outside in two getaway cars.

Bates said if it were determined that Miss Hearst was a willing participant, she also would be charged with bank robbery.

The robbery took place shortly after the 9 a.m. opening of a Hibernia Bank branch in San Francisco's oceanside Sunset District. The four women — all young and white, wearing dark coats and "waffle-stomper" type boots and carrying semi-automatic rifles — and a man entered the bank with militarylike precision, scooped $10,690 from cash drawers after ordering patrons and employees to lie on the floor, then fled through the front door, firing at passersby.

Two men were seriously wounded, but both were reported in satisfactory condition at a hospital. They were Peter Markoff, 59, who operates a nearby liquor store, and Eugene Brennan, 70, who lives near the scene.

A hidden camera in the bank took several dramatic photographs of the gun-wielding robbers, including one showing the woman identified as Patricia carrying a gun but with another of the robbers appearing to be holding a gun on her.

Mother doesn't believe it . . .
See page 10.

It was because of this picture, plus apparent efforts by the robbers to go out of their way to identify her as "Tania," that authorities speculated she was forced to take part.

"There's reason to believe she was not a willing partner in the kidnaping or the bank robbery," said U.S. Attorney James Browning.

The three women named in bank robbery warrants were Nancy Ling Perry, Patricia Michelle Soltysik and Camilla Catherine Hall, all believed previously to be members of the tiny SLA which claimed responsibility for the Hearst kidnaping and the slaying last November of Oakland Schools Supt. Marcus Foster.

None of the men was identified.

The bank robbery was yet another bizarre development in a case which Browning calls unprecedented.

"There's never been another case in the annals of legal history where the victim of a kidnaping has turned up in the middle of a robbery," he told newsmen.

The appearance of Miss Hearst on the film allayed fear that she might be dead, for while her voice had been heard on a tape recording as recently as 13 days ago, she had not been seen since the night of Feb. 4 when she was carried screaming from her apartment near the University of California campus in Berkeley.

Golan Heights Battle Rages Despite Warning From Egypt

SITTING IT OUT — Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan sits inside bunker during shelling by Syrian artillery of Mt. Hermon. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

By United Press International

Israeli and Syrian artillery clashed again on the snow-capped slopes of Mt. Hermon today despite an Egyptian warning that fighting might break out in the Sinai Desert unless Tel Aviv curtails its military activity on the Golan Heights.

The Tel Aviv command said the latest flareup on the northern front — the 36th consecutive day — broke out when Syrian artillery fired at Israeli positions on the peak of strategic Mt. Hermon.

The command said one Israeli soldier was killed and two wounded in the sporadic Syrian fire that continued through the night and that artillery fire was returned.

The action brought the casualty toll in the area since March 12 to seven killed and 44 wounded, military records indicated.

A military communique from Damascus said "this morning, clashes spread to other sectors of the (Golan Heights) front and fighting is still continuing."

The communique gave no other details.

The Egyptian warning was issued today after Israeli and Syrian forces duelled for control of the strategic slopes Monday.

The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar said Israel should not count on Egyptian guns to remain silent if the fighting with Syria continues.

"Israel cannot remain with one Arab front to concentrate on," the authoritative newspaper said. "The time when Israel was able to practice this method has passed."

Egypt and Israel agreed earlier this year to separate their forces along the Suez Canal. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, architect of the accord, has been trying to work out a similar pact with Syria.

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan visited snow-capped Mt. Hermon, a 9,000-foot peak straddling Lebanon, Israel and Syria, Monday for a first-hand view of the latest fighting.

At one point, the Syrian bombardment of Israeli positions on the mountain, which commands a 100-mile view of surrounding territory, became so intense Dayan was forced to take shelter in a bunker.

Damascus Radio reported Defense Minister Mustafa Tlas made a similar visit Sunday to Syrian positions on the embattled mountain.

The Israeli military command reported two soldiers wounded in Monday's shelling, which started early in the day and lasted until 7 p.m.

"It's still a war," one Israeli soldier at the scene said. "I can't see an end to it in the near future."

Israeli forces regained control of Mt. Hermon during the last days of the 1973 Middle East War after losing much of the peak at the start of the fighting.

Troops controlling the mountain can track all air activity in the Damascus area and call down artillery on the Golan Heights.

Israel has reported three Syrian attempts to seize the peak during the past three days with each assault driven back.

In New York, Lebanon has asked the United Nations Security Council to take "appropriate and efficient means" to stop Israeli raids across the border, arguing that condemnation would not be enough.

The council debated Monday for 2½ hours on Lebanon's complaint about an Israeli raid Friday night on six Lebanese villages.

Israel was retaliating for the attack by three Arab guerrillas the day before on the town of Qiryat Shimonah in which 18 Israelis and the three Arabs were killed.

Foreign Minister Fouad Nafza of Lebanon told the 15-member council Israel would react with "indifference and contempt" to a condemnation.

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Teakoh replied that Lebanon must "prevent the use of its territory for attacks against Israel."

"If the Lebanese government permits Lebanon to become a lawless gangland, it is obvious that its neighbors will treat it as a gangland," he declared.

A spokesman for the United States, Israel's traditional ally, told newsmen that any condemnation of Israel must be balanced by a condemnation of Palestinian terrorism.

Doubt Price Spiral as Curbs End

(Combined Wire Services) WASHINGTON — The Cost of Living Council (CLC) has ended 2½ years of wage and price regulation in the food industry, but government and industry spokesmen say the action won't affect supermarket prices.

The council Monday removed wage-price controls from 2.5 million workers and 330,000 firms in the food industry nationwide.

The action allows food wholesalers and retailers to boost prices in order to increase their profit margins. Under the controls they could raise prices only to pass along increases in costs.

The controls would have been lifted soon anyway. The CLC and the remaining wage-price control program — now covering only steel and copper — go out of business April 30, unless Congress intervenes with last-minute legislation to control a few inflation-prone industries.

Lifting the food controls will have "almost no effect" on consumer food prices, Clarence G. Adamy, president of the National Association of Food Chains, told UPI.

A government economist agreed. "I don't think it will produce any upward pressure on retail prices," said Dawson Ahalt, an economic advisor to Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz.

Ahalt said he does not expect any unreasonable increase in food industry profit margins. "That industry's a pretty competitive thing. If someone jacks up his prices, his competitors will take advantage of it and bring prices down," he said.

CLC Director John T. Dunlop said competition within the industry and voluntary compliance with the government's economic stabilization program "provide reasonable assurances that decontrol will not result in inordinate rises in food prices in the months ahead attributable to food retailing and wholesaling."

Even under the controls, retail food prices have been free to rise and fall with farm costs. Retail food ceilings were dropped after a brief trial last year. Average retail food prices went up sharply in January and February this year, but prices for a number of foods — especially meats — have declined in recent weeks.

The CLC cited a willingness of labor and management to work for improved collective bargaining as a reason for taking off the food controls before April 30.

"The most effective way the government can contribute to the moderation of food price inflation is to continue to pursue policies designed to expand supplies of food available to the American people," Dunlop said.

Actually, many consumers might hope for lower prices on the food shelf, since the cost of many agricultural products has been declining at the farm level for several weeks.

Area Consumers Picket C-H Site

By LYNN MULVANEY

ELLENVILLE — "What'll it be Central Hudson? Kilowatt or kill the consumer?"

That and many other questions were posed Monday afternoon in Ellenville where several dozen "Concerned Consumers of Lower Ulster County" took up placards and protested the utilities proposed rate increases.

Marching directly in front of the CH&E Company office on Route 209 the pickets let it be known that their ire was directed not only at the utility but at the Public Service Commission which, according to Henry L. Klein, "has consistently favored the utilities."

Klein, a member of the CCLU public relations committee, urged that "all consumers band together and support legislative proposals which would require PSC officials to be elected rather than appointed."

"We are small people who have picked a big opponent," he said, at the same time expressing optimism that the consumers could win their battle.

"The pressures are there," he said. "All area legislative bodies on the town and the county level have come out against the proposed 23.5 per cent hike for residential consumers."

The Concerned Consumers made three specific requests which they said they will take to a fourth PSC public hearing on the rate hike request to be held April 22 in Poughkeepsie.

They ask that first of all there be "no rate increase" . . . that there be "a roll back of CH&E residential rates" and that "there be no fuel adjustment allowance. Central Hudson should absorb that," Klein suggested.

Mrs. Herman Janson, another of the marchers, made some of the placards the consumers carried with one in particular attracting considerable attention. It read "Said Central Hudson, let there be light . . . Then promptly priced it out of sight."

Inside Central Hudson's Office, the staff observed the demonstration philosophically, calling it peaceful. One of several customers who came in to pay their electric bills said, "I'm here to pay my bill under protest, but I'll pay it."

Frank Bailey, CH&E Ellenville office manager, was not available for comment.

Consumer opposition was also expressed with regard to the suggestion that a reduction in total electric home rates be divided among the bills of other utility users. Klein said CCLU and electricity . . . that some objects to such a proposal as being a divisive effort and an unfair one. Why should one group of consumers pay the cost of others use of electricity? he asked.

Mrs. Ann Bowler, a line captain in the march, and one of several persons who organized the opposition to the rate hikes in lower Ulster County, said she and the group have requested a meeting with Gov. Malcolm Wilson. Their wish, she said, is to develop legislative proposals and in particular study the feasibility of public ownership of utilities.

Klein said local schools have total electric home rates be recently experienced a 100 per cent increase in the cost of gas and electricity . . . that some people have received increases of 60 per cent in recent months and that "one little old lady was practically in tears" when she was faced with a bill of $323 for her totally electric home.

PSC Proposes Lower Rate Hike

By JON POWERS

ALBANY — have the opportunity to cross-examine the PSC experts when the rate hearing resumes April 22. They are expected to question, in depth the procedures used by the PSC to determine that Central Hudson has (allegedly) overstated the additional revenues it requires.

Central Hudson has maintained that it requires $12,177,000 in additional revenues to meet anticipated expenses. But, according to James K. Dundon, principal accountant for the PSC, "the additional revenue required will be between $9,434,000 and $9,959,000."

Using a variety of statistics and formulas to determine its own assessment of Central Hudson's future revenue requirements, the PSC staff examined each aspect of the utility's rate increase request. Cuts were made in some areas; increases were allowed in others.

For instance, the PSC staff proposes an adjustment that would reduce production expenses by $3,702,000, another adjustment would decrease the company's operating expenses by $124,600. At the same time, PSC-proposed adjustments for either gas or electric revenues would take into account increases in federal income taxes ($363,000), and expected increases in taxes other than income taxes ($52,000).

In all, the PSC staff contends that Central Hudson's revenue request can be reduced from between $2,218,000 to $2,743,000, for an overall increase of between 13.1 and 13.8 per cent, instead of 17 per cent.

The PSC staff used much the same procedure in evaluating Central Hudson's application for the PSC staff will then cross-examine Central Hudson's revenues. The PSC contends that Central Hudson requires be submitted to the full commission on June 7. A final decision isn't expected to be made until November or December.

Wilson Signs Bell Bill

ALBANY — Gov. Malcolm Wilson has signed into law a bill introduced by Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-101st Dist.) increasing the number of members of the temporary state commission to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the American Revolution and the 200th anniversary of the creation of the State of New York.

The Bell bill boosts membership on the commission from 21 to 27 and provides that the governor, temporary president of the Senate and the speaker of the Assembly shall each appoint two.

With the bicentennial year of 1976 drawing closer and the workload of the commission growing heavier, it is necessary to make these additional appointments so that the State of

New York can be recognized as a leader of the celebration," Bell said.

"I am, of course, very pleased that the governor has approved the bill. Certainly the commission should be encouraged and supported in every way possible while it develops projects to mark this important event and spotlight the historic contribution New York State made to the founding of our great nation."

Bell also cited the fact that the City of Kingston, which he represents, was the first capital of the state and has many outstanding historical sites such as the original State Senate House and the State Senate Museum, both of which will play an important part in the 1976 celebration.

'74 Budget Adopted

SAUGERTIES the board would reconsider a 20-cent an hour raise it had included in the new budget for them. Following the public hearing the board did reconsider and raised the increase from $400 a year to $700.

At a special meeting called later to adopt the budget, the board also considered the nomination of three men to fill the vacancy to be created by Gage's retirement. Nominated were Franklin Clum Jr., John Rivenberg and Harry Anders.

Mayor Vernon A. Benjamin called first for a vote on Clum with a 3-3 tie resulting. The mayor then cast a deciding "no" vote.

Mayor Benjamin then called for a roll call vote on Rivenberg which resulted in a 4-2 vote in favor. Rivenberg, then contacted by phone declined the appointment.

A roll call vote for Anders was then requested by Benjamin which resulted in a 3-2 vote in favor. Another phone call to then absent Mrs. Hinchey resulted in another vote for Anders giving him a winning 4-2 tally.

Gage, who is retiring after 10 years in his village posts, will be honored at a testimonial dinner April 30 at the Flamingo Restaurant.

Kissinger Turns to Latins

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger turned his attention to Latin America today after proposing a six-point plan to achieve world economic growth without soaring prices of raw materials.

In an address before the U.N. General Assembly, Kissinger pledged Monday the United States would make a major effort to promote world economic development, but he warned against "the politics of pressure and threats."

He was expected to lay the groundwork in Washington today for Wednesday's Latin American foreign ministers conference in which the United States has promised to press for a "new dialogue" in the Americas.

The conference was a sequel to this year's Mexico City foreign ministers' meeting, which led to an agreement on the need for more hemispheric talks.

Kissinger scheduled a meeting this morning with Argentine Foreign Minister Alberto J. Vignes and at noon with the Brazilian Foreign Minister Antonio Azevedo da Silveira.

In his six-point plan before the United Nations, Kissinger proposed expanding the world energy supply at a fair price, stabilizing the cycles of surplus and shortages of raw materials, balancing food production with population growth, employing technology to achieve abundance and stabilizing world trade.

He warned, however, that arbitrary price hikes of raw materials would produce "global inflation followed by global recession from which no nation could escape."

In his New York hotel suite, Kissinger discussed Syrian-Israeli troop withdrawals with a Moroccan Foreign Minister Ahmed Taib Benhima.

The spokesman had no comment on Fahmi's warning at the United Nations of large-scale fighting between Israel and Egypt if the war of attrition along the Golan Heights continues.

FLOOD WATERS IN MISSISSIPPI

(UPI TELEPHOTO)

Upset by Bombing Ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., says she is "extremely disappointed" that the Supreme Court has passed up the opportunity to define the war-making powers of the President and Congress.

The Brooklyn congresswoman and four U.S. airmen brought suit in an effort to have the American bombing of Cambodia last summer declared unconstitutional. One district court judge ruled in their favor, but the U.S. 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals said their suit was "bluntly political and not a judicial question."

They appealed, but on Monday the Supreme Court declined to hear the case.

The suit was similar to a dozen or so aimed at a finding that the Vietnam War was unconstitutional because it had not been declared by Congress. Antiwar groups and servicemen who rebelled at going to Vietnam tried in vain to place the issue before the nine justices.

A spokesman for the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU), which represented the Holtzman group, said the court undoubtedly refused to concern itself with the issue because the bombing is no longer taking place. It was stopped last August by act of Congress.

But the issue of how a president can use U.S. armed forces without Congress' consent is still "absolutely vital so far as the lives of American citizens are concerned," the ACLU spokesman declared.

Rep. Holtzman said that in her opinion the Founding Fathers intended war to be waged only by order of Congress.

"I am extremely disappointed that the court didn't take this opportunity to affirm this principle," she said.

After the bombing halted in August, Congress passed the War Powers Act designed to regulate the circumstances under which a president can pursue a war without congressional approval. President Nixon vetoed this legislation, which was then enacted over his veto.

A Bloodless Coup

COTONOU, Dahomey (UPI) — The new military rulers in Niger reported the uranium-rich West African nation "well in hand" today after a bloodless coup by the tiny army.

Radio Niamey said in a broadcast from the capital of neighboring Niger the French-speaking nation of 4 million was quiet, with the army maintaining a curfew following Monday's military takeover.

"Everything is well in hand," Lt. Col. Seyni Kountie, the French television reporter that army chief of staff, said over the radio after toppling President Hamani Diori. Niger's ruler since independence from France in 1960.

Niger, which has been devastated by a drought sweeping sub-Saharan Africa since 1973, got aid to Niger's drought-stricken areas.

Notice is hereby given that the following proposed rate schedule has been filed with the Public Service Commission to become effective on May 1, 1974.

Introduction of Private Line DATASPEED 40th Service.

Private Line DATASPEED 40 Service is furnished for communication between a subscriber-provided computer and DATASPEED 40 data terminals.

DATASPEED 40 Data Terminals provide facilities which may be used by a customer for entering, storing, displaying, editing, printing and sending and receiving data in a private line selective calling system. This equipment sends and receives at speeds up to 1200 bits per second in sequence over Data Schedule 4 leased channel facilities. 200 Series data sets are required at the computer and terminal locations.

Two pricing plans are available. Plan 1 consists of monthly rates and installation charges. Plan 2 consists of monthly rates only, except as specified below. At the option of the subscriber, either Plan 1 or Plan 2 may be selected. When Plan 1 or Plan 2 is selected for a terminal, that Plan also applies to the Optional Features and Station Controller associated with that terminal.

Plan 2 consists of two levels of monthly rates. One level of rates applies during the first year of the installation. Another lower level of rates applies after the first year. All rates are subject to change upon the filing of a revised tariff. No installation charge applies under Plan 2, except when optional features are provided subsequent to the initial installation of the associated terminal, in which case the installation charge specified under Plan 1 applies in addition to the Plan 2 monthly charge.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, APRIL 16, 1974

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Long before Frank Sturgis joined the world's most celebrated burglary crew and broke into the Watergate, he was my friend.

I knew him as a soldier of fortune, a pilot and gun runner, a romantic who bloomed ill-betimed in a programmed age, and an adventurer whom humdrum could never quite assimilate. He was also a Don Quixote, square jaw set against the enemy, drawn irresistibly to such calamities as the Bay of Pigs and Watergate.

We have kept in touch over the years, but he has periodically dropped out of sight, forever chasing adventure, usually finding misadventure.

Once in his youth, he confounded the odds and became part of a legend, one of the ragged few who persevered in the mountains with Fidel Castro.

After their incredible victory, he could be seen on Havana's streets in the regalia of an Air Marshal. For a time, he was Castro's man in charge of "liberated" gambling casinos and luxury hotels.

On matters of principle, having to do with Castro's repression and his turn toward Russia, Frank defected from the Revolution to become again the long-shot gambler against the house. Thereafter, he risked his neck against Castro in foredoomed ventures of the Cuban "freedom fighters."

He progressed from the Bay of Pigs to Watergate, where he thought he was seeking evidence that Castro was contributing to the George McGovern campaign.

After Frank and his friends were arrested at gunpoint inside Democratic headquarters, they were pictured in the press as figures of fun, bunglers, and petty thieves.

On another level, they became caricatures of Orwellian enemies of the American system. It was even whispered that they had been behind the plot to assassinate President Kennedy.

As evidence, one group brought me a news photo taken on the streets of Dallas on assassination day. They eagerly pointed out a man they said was Sturgis lurking in the shadows. The man resembled Sturgis but definitely was not Sturgis.

And in Miami, the Justice Department solemnly charged that Sturgis had recruited mercenaries, a dirty dozen, ostensibly to fight Castro but really to steal cars. The prosecutors waited until after the Watergate caper to bring the charges. When they couldn't convince the jury, they convened another jury which finally convicted Frank of Transporting stolen cars to Mexico.

Frank has told me that the Watergate figure he admires most is G. Gordon Liddy who has maintained a grim, tight-lipped silence in the face of a harsh, 20-year sentence. So Sturgis, Liddy-like, sat through the auto theft trial without testifying in his own defense.

I have now persuaded him to tell his story, which I have carefully checked with the witnesses I could reach. They have confirmed most details as he related them, but there are no available witnesses to other events.

Frank has always been ready at the crook of a finger to pick up his carbine and rush off to a new adventure. It was altogether characteristic of him, therefore, to volunteer in 1968 to lead a mission for a total stranger who identified himself as Col. Francisco Quesada. The colonel sought out Sturgis to help hijack a Soviet freighter and hold it hostage for the return of the U.S. spy ship Pueblo, which the North Koreans had captured in January 1968.

Frank advertised in the newspapers for adventurers and selected his dirty dozen from the toughest applicants. He gave no thought to the possibility that some of them may have applied from the wrong side of the law.

In obedience to the colonel's instructions, Frank told them only that they would participate in a mission against Castro and would be paid after the mission was completed.

He never learned until later, he swears, that a couple of his troopers raised drinking and gambling money by leasing two cars and selling them in Mexico. Indeed, one had been sentenced to a federal penitentiary in 1966 for a similar crime.

Eventually, Frank rounded up his undisciplined band from Mexican bars and bawdy houses, loaded them aboard a fishing boat and set out for a secret rendezvous with a gunboat that he had been told would assist them with the hijacking.

But Frank's boatload of adventurers afloat on a reef off the coast of British Honduras, Frank put eight men and all the firearms ashore on a mangrove swamp. Then he and four others made their way to Belize, British Honduras, seeking to repair the boat.

The motley mercenaries, of course, were spotted and rounded up by the British authorities, and Frank's "Mission: Impossible" ended in a Honduran jail.

They were shortly deported back to the United States and the missing autos were traced to Frank's men. Angry at Frank because they hadn't been paid for the abortive adventure, they told the authorities he had directed them to sell the leased cars.

I have always known Frank Sturgis as a man of touching sincerity, sober habits and fierce patriotism. Although misguided, he fully deserved the sentence for his role in the Watergate break-in. But the auto theft conviction, I believe, is a bum rap.

FOOTNOTE: U.S. Attorney William Northcutt, who has a reputation in Miami for decency and integrity, noted that Sturgis "had every break. If he failed to bring forth evidence that was material, the prosecution was not to blame." Northcutt also emphasized: "There was no relationship between the car case and Watergate."

The Judiciary Subpoena

The concepts of executive privilege and confidentiality appear to have no application in a case of presidential impeachment proceedings. The Constitution gives the House of Representatives sole responsibility for the conduct of such proceedings. It goes against reason and logic to argue that a president who is the object of an impeachment inquiry may at his discretion withhold any information the House investigatory committee requests.

It is in light of this that one must consider the House Judiciary Committee's issuance of a subpoena requiring President Nixon to produce 42 tapes and other records of conversation thought germane to the Watergate coverup. The committee is clearly within its rights in making this demand. We see no valid grounds on which the President could refuse to honor this congressional subpoena, and believe he should comply with it unreservedly by the April 25 deadline.

Should he fail to do so, the Judiciary Committee would have essentially two choices: it could move to a confrontation, either by seeking a contempt citation from the House or by referring a contempt citation to the courts, or it could make non-compliance in itself a ground for impeachment. The latter course seems by far the most likely should the President defy the subpoena. It is essential that this matter be seen in perspective. The central fact, at the present juncture, is that after requesting the tapes and other material on February 15 the committee waited nearly two months before issuing a subpoena to enforce its request. Despite concerted White House efforts to depict the request as a "fishing expedition" and as exemplifying a desire to "back up a U-Haul truck to the White House" and cart off items indiscriminately, this does not jibe with the facts of the case. The committee has been quite explicit as to the materials it wants to examine as potential evidence.

It must be remembered, too, that the impeachment proceedings have not been frivolously undertaken, nor are they markedly partisan in character. The House voted overwhelmingly to initiate them. This was done in recognition of the fact that such proceedings—in essence a means of determining whether the President ought to be brought to trial for his conduct in office—are the only constitutionally prescribed means of dealing with such a matter.

To sum up: the House Judiciary Committee, having waited nearly two months for evidentiary material the White House balked at supplying, was wholly justified in issuing a subpoena to command that this material be furnished. The President would be well advised to comply without further recalcitrance.

Gas at a Price

Gasoline at 60 cents a gallon is no longer something to be spoken of as a future possibility. Service stations are getting that price on the average for premium gas in New York, Illinois and Hawaii, and other states are not far behind. Nationally, according to the American Automobile Association, the average prices have gone up to 54 cents for regular and 57 for premium.

This depressing state of affairs is tempered somewhat by word that a nationwide survey shows only three per cent of the stations out of fuel. That must be measured against the situation not very long ago when stations in various parts of the country were exhausting their daily quotas by mid-morning.

The improving supply picture encourages belief in Federal Energy Office assurances that "there will be gas out there" for summer travel. In the near future, it appears, enough gas will be available to virtually meet normal demand. This is not the same as having enough at "normal" prices. Americans on the road will have to get used to paying prices 20 cents or more per gallon higher than they paid last summer.

Adieu Le France

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

The Chief Purser of the S. S. France put it this way. "When the Arabs quadrupled the price of oil, they wrote an end to The France as surely as if they had aimed a torpedo at her side. Do you know how much fuel we will burn on this round-the-world cruise?"

If I have known I would not have answered, would not have deprived him of the pleasure of administering the shock. "Five hundred thousand tons." That is a lot of fuel. I figured it at 30 tons per hour. "They talk about handling our deficit with little economies. Do away with caviar at night! But why do people come on The France in the first place? The point is we're not the Holiday Inn. Then they say: do away with the free table wine. Do you know how much that costs us?" The shock this time was not how much, but how little. "About 12 cents per bottle. We buy whole harvests."

There was a little frenzied optimism as the huge steamer left Capetown for St. Helena, that Gaullist Pride might save this exquisite ship. Perhaps Charles de Gaulle would have put up the estimate $25 million annual subsidy. The present government would not, and President Pompidou himself would go, and with him much of what is left of Gaullist pride, before The France completed the cruise.

We got the bad news just as we pulled out of St. Helena, but the crew of 1200 took it as stoically as their Emperor had taken that "damnable rock," as he referred to the little island 1200 miles from Africa, 1800 miles from South America. The only happy man in St. Helena that night was the gentleman who picked my wallet.

I did not bother to cable the Diner's Club. The next boat to St. Helena wasn't due for four or five months. The only time there was ever heavy traffic there was when Napoleon was in residence, and two British frigates circled the 18-mile coastline, one clockwise, the other counterclockwise, day after day for two years, lest the most explosive human force of the 19th century should slither out and bring tumult yet again to Europe. Instead becoming listless, he lay much of the time in his bathtub at Longwood, the dreary house the British built for him, dictating to his dwindling staff. When he died, Longwood was used to shear sheep, and finally the French bought it from Queen Victoria, and it survives scruffily. How will visitors get there, now that the passenger ships are disappearing?

Places of exile should, one supposes, look like St. Helena, and smell that way. If it comes up tails for Nixon, San Clemente would look and smell like Longwood in a matter of weeks. Meanwhile, the sun, as it set, penetrated the clouds and put a halo on St. Helena for just a few minutes as The France pulled away heading for Dakar. The French Line thinks of everything.

Contrasts, always. St. Helena and Versailles, Dakar and New York. One wonders whether the sidereal fever or whatever it is that rages in your system in protest against going to sleep in Dakar and waking up in New York—isn't partly a matter not only of a metabolic resistance to traveling across six time zones in six hours, but of a cultural resistance to seeing so much contrast so sharply.

At St. Helena, Napoleon, overlord of Europe, was surrounded by four courtiers and two women, and had seven servants. The 200 soldiers on the island were not at his disposal, but at that of the sadist who governed the island, his full-time warden. Tragedy was defined long ago as the fall from a great height. At St. Helena you feel the full horror of it, and it is best approached at 30 miles per hour, aboard a boat, that at jet speed. Easier to come, easier to go. But the accent, now, is uniformly on speed and the French will spend another quarter billion dollars to develop a supersonic jet while The France slips into drydock. They call that the wave of the future. "So," I said to the purser, "in that case La France will go down?" He corrected me. "Non, Monsieur." "Le France, pas La France." He may be right.

They were shortly deported back to the United States and the missing autos were traced to Frank's men. Angry at Frank because they hadn't been paid for the abortive adventure, they told the authorities he had directed them to sell the leased cars.

I have always known Frank Sturgis as a man of touching sincerity, sober habits and fierce patriotism. Although misguided, he fully deserved the sentence for his role in the Watergate break-in. But the auto theft conviction, I believe, is a bum rap.

FOOTNOTE: U.S. Attorney William Northcutt, who has a reputation in Miami for decency and integrity, noted that Sturgis "had every break. ## Big-Time Charity, U. S. A.

WASHINGTON — Even in Vermont, from whence the Republicans sent him to the Senate, they probably don't know Robert Stafford's name; and the Democrat who heads the subcommittee, the other Minnesotan running for the Presidency, is as decent as he is obscure. Fritz Mondale doesn't get the big press coverage at his hearings that Teddy Kennedy does.

The last time the subcommittee over which Mondale presides held public hearings on children's charities, they had to import Peter Falk, the guy who plays Columbo on television, to get some attention. That's how non-household words have to operate here. Before that hearing the staff people were calling around, asking who knew a movie star who would come and say anything in order to get some ink.

They'd boo-boomed with the media once, before, because they'd leaked their juiciest news tidbits to Jack Anderson so he could run them in the papers the morning the hearings started. Much of the media seemed to be retaliating for being scooped by not covering the hearings this time.

There were only a few of us present to appreciate Mr. Paul Funk, executive vice president of the Epilepsy Foundation, and his colleagues in the noble work of the cure and treatment of this disease. The testimony developed that, in addition to compensating Mr. Funk at more than $40,000 a year, the foundation also pays him a $12,000 "signer" fee for putting his signature on his contract.

Mr. Gordon, the lawyer representing Epilepsy, explained that this was not a bonus, but a sum paid to guarantee Mr. Funk's services exclusively to the foundation and to prevent him from skipping out to another disease. Just like Wilt Chamberlain found he was contractually forbidden to jump from the Lakers to play for the Conquistadors, so Mr. Funk may not jump to Cystic Fibrosis, Cancer, Arthritis or Cerebral Palsy.

There was also some discussion as to whether the AMX on which the foundation pays most of the leasing charges, and in which Mr. Funk does most of the driving, is or is not a sports car. Pressing on, Senator Stafford wanted to know, "Are your contributors made aware that approximately one-half of their money will go to management, overhead and fund-raising?"

"Yes, if they ask," Mr. Funk answered. Then, remarking that less than 4 per cent of their money goes for research, Sen. Mondale asked, "If you said that three cents of every dollar is going for research, do you think you'd get much money?"

That elicited a discursive answer from Mr. Funk, who did manage to point out that November is not an epilepsy month, a fact that should be of great pride to Scorpius. But whether that means mankind is only afflicted with 12 big-league diseases, or what we should do in case science should score another breakthrough and discover a 13th major affliction, was never talked about. No one in the room seemed to realize how fast and how far a disease like muscular dystrophy has come, or that a disease like myasthenia gravis—which is only slightly better known than Fritz Mondale—has promise of drawing far more contributions for its campaigns than the Senator.

Mondale gave no inkling of annoyance that an obscure disease could do so well and he so poorly, but he pushed ahead, wanting to know why the foundation had spent $55,000 last year in employment agency fees. These and other questions about how the money got frittered away betrayed the Senator's absolute ignorance of the reason for Big-Time Charity, USA.

It isn't to help cure epilepsy or nephritis or autism or Cadwallader's Syndrome or to line the pockets of fund-raisers and charity bureaucrats. It is to make the givers feel good; to provide us with telethons; to give fading comics top billing at the benefits; to give us small, little givers an opportunity to meet, socialize and have fun marching on our neighbors and getting them to put something in the pot. Charity is losers, like John D. Rockefeller III, paying out enough money to be called philanthropists and taken seriously by journalists when they talk about subjects they don't understand.

Neither the givers nor the recipients can take too many winners like Sabin and his polio vaccine. Sen. Mondale can't fathom that kind of thinking, but let's hope the Epilepsy Foundation people do.

On the way out after the hearing, their lawyer twinkled back at a questioner, smiled and said, "Nobody's ever been indicted by following my advice."

Fish Moves on Income Act

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Disregard Social Security substantial reason to believe he Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr. increases in determining in- come for eligibility for SSI pay- ments.

Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr. has joined in in- troducing legislation aimed at broadly amending the Supple- mental Security Income Act, which on Jan. 1, transferred all aged, blind and disabled from the Social Services to Social Se- curity.

"From the confusion and hardship caused since the change-over, it is clear that the act, originally intended to pro- vide adequate support for the aged, blind and disabled, has proven to be quite inadequate," Fish said.

The amendments introduced by Fish today would:

- Replace lost, stolen or un- delivered checks within 24 hours.
- Provide SSI recipients with an automatic cost of living in- crease parallel to those avail- able for Social Security recip- ients.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Malcolm Wilson has introduced legislation to put new limits on campaign spending. But his bill is considerably less com- prehensive than one already approved overwhelmingly in the Assembly.

Wilson's measure, which he submitted Monday, would set a campaign spending limit of 50 cents per eligible voter for all candidates in state and local elections — about $4.6 million for contenders in this Novem- ber's gubernatorial election.

The Assembly bill contains similar limits, and both mea- sures would close the loopholes that allow candidates to evade current ceilings through a maze of committees.

But the Assembly bill goes much further, banning political "dirty tricks" and establishing a bipartisan commission with sweeping powers to enforce the election law.

Wilson's bill would put more limited enforcement powers in the hands of the secretary of state, a political appointee of the governor.

The governor's bill was in- troduced in apparent haste late Monday afternoon, only a few hours after Wilson's office had told reporters it would not be submitted that day. It was de- livered with the usual news re- lease—a fact that added to the impression of haste.

Political observers speculated that the hurry was necessary to get the bill out in time for Wil- son's closed-door conference to- day with Assembly Speaker Perry Duryea and Senate Ma- jority Leader Warren Ander- son.

Duryea, a potential rival of Wilson's for the Republican gu- bernatorial nomination, is the prime sponsor of the Assembly bill. Wilson was reported last week to be holding back his own bill in hopes of reaching a compromise.

The stalemate between Wil- son and Duryea on the cam- paign bill added that subject to the list of major issues which must be resolved before the legislature can adjourn—something legislative leaders hope to do in less than a month.

Among other matters still un- der negotiation are increased school aid, tax relief and state help to meet New York City's projects $1-billion-plus budget gap.

The Assembly is scheduled this week to take up a bill to restore the death penalty in the state, but no Senate action is yet in sight.

Wilson said in submitting his campaign legislation that "in a time of increasing cynicism about government, it is vital that steps be taken to restore the people's confidence."

At current registration, fig- ures, both the Wilson and As- sembly bills would hold gen- eral election candidates for state- wide office to about $4.6 million each. Statewide candidates could spend $2.1 million in a Democratic primary and $1.6 million in a Republican pri- mary.

In contrast, former Gov. Nel- son Rockefeller spent $6.7 mil- lion in his last reelection bid in 1970, of which $4.8 million came from him and his family.

The Assembly measure would limit the candidate and his law enforcement. The Assem-

Wilson's measure would create a bi- partisan, four-member commis- sion to take over the enforce- ment functions now scattered among various state and local agencies.

Wilson argued that his ap- proach, centering more limited powers in the secretary of state's office, was more "eco- nomical" than creating a new bureaucracy. His bill could create a commission to advise the secretary of state, with its six unsalaried members nomi- nated by the four political par- ties, the state Bar Association and the League of Women Vol- ers. But it would have no real power.

Neither bill allows direct pub- lic financing of campaigns, al- though the Assembly version

UCCC Alumni Meeting Called

Members of the Ulster County Community College Alumni Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday (April 18) at the Stockade Restaurant in Kingston to discuss plans for coming activities, according to President Keith Jordan.

A social hour will follow the meeting. Jordan said there will be a discussion of possible activities for later this spring and summer and added that reports will be given on a fund-raising activity for scholarships.

The president said the Association had the largest representation of any alumni association at the recent conference of the State University Alumni Federation held at the Americana Inn in Albany.

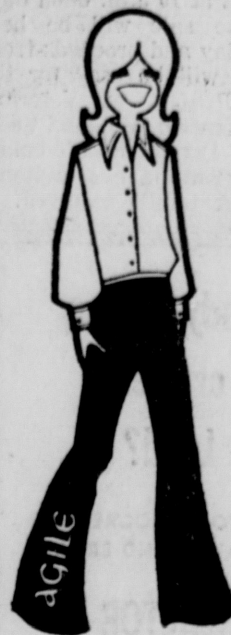

Plans are being made for Ulster Alumni Association members to attend a regional meeting later this spring in New York City, according to Jordan.

Fashion Tips

Brightly colored plaid pants and big bow ties are making a strong showing for men this spring. The jaunty, casual look and a very comfortable going into full swing, inspired by the movie "The Great Gatsby."

Cotton denim after it's washed becomes soft, supple and comfortable. That may partly account for its continued tremendous popularity in jeans, jean jackets, shirts and now in skirts, hats, pocketbooks and suitcases. Embroidered flowers, symbols, animals and free form designs add individualistic touch.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for six years, and I definitely have made up my mind that I do not want any children. My husband says if that's the way I feel about it, it's all right with him.

The problem is that I want him to have a vasectomy — an operation which will make him sterile. (My brother-in-law had one, and he says it is a breeze.) My husband says he doesn't want that kind of operation, and he thinks it's up to me to either take the necessary precautions or have an operation to make me sterile.

I would like your opinion.

NO CHILDREN THANKS

DEAR NO: Since it was your decision to have no children, I think it's up to you to take the precautions instead of insisting that your husband subject himself to a vasectomy. Be realistic. If you were to divorce your husband (or die) and he were to marry again, he and his next mate might want children. As for a vasectomy being a "breeze," one man's breeze is another man's gale.

DEAR ABBY: I am so heart sick this morning after getting very little sleep last night.

My sister-in-law informed me yesterday that my husband (her brother) plays golf just to get away from me!

I was so crushed I couldn't find the words to answer her. I've been married for 35 years and always thought I had a good marriage — and now this. Please tell me how to handle it.

MRS. M.

DEAR MRS. M.: Is there a possibility that she was joking? If not, she clearly meant to hurt you, and the only way to deal with someone who intentionally hurts you is from a distance, and as infrequently as possible.

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating this nice young man exclusively for seven months. He didn't ask me to go steady. I just don't care to go with anyone else. He doesn't go with anyone else either, so I guess you'd say we are going steady.

My problem is my mother. She has told me that she doesn't want me to date him anymore. Just like that! The reason: He's too short! (He's exactly my height — 5 foot 6.)

I'm not a child. I'm 20 years old, but I live at home with my parents. I'd move out, but they need the money I pay for my room and board.

This fellow is an outstanding person, Abby. He's an assistant professor, and although he doesn't make much now, he has a promising future. Besides, he is good to me, and I care for him. I'd appreciate your opinion.

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO: Your mother is short — on common sense. Tell her that her objections to the young man are not valid, and that you measure a man from his eyebrows up.

CONFIDENTIAL TO T.P.C.: Urge him to put his affairs in order. He may LIVE.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212.

Secretaries V.I.P. Club

National Secretaries Week, April 21-27, will be the kick-off for a year-round tribute to the unsung heroes of the business community.

Spearheading the program to turn one week into year round recognition is Prime Motor Inns, Inc., a Clifton, N. J. corporation which operates motor inns in the East, Midwest and Florida under such nationally famous names as Sheraton, Ramada and Howard Johnson's.

"As motor inn managers, we realize the importance of the secretary," says Prime Chairman of the Board Peter E. Simon. "It is the secretary who is responsible for arranging most travel, banquet and hotel accommodations."

In order to recognize and reward the secretaries for their efforts, Prime created the "V.I.P. Club for secretaries exclusively."

As its name denotes, the Club is designed strictly for the secretary and presents her with a full range of hotel services in the East, Midwest and Florida emphasizing personal attention. However, unlike most exclusive clubs, the V.I.P. Club combines its exclusiveness with substantial savings on hotel facilities... a definite plus during this inflationary period. And there are no dues or membership fees.

What the Prime V.I.P. Club for secretaries exclusively does do is offer its members 10 to 25 per cent discounts on rooms, dining and banquet for the secretary and in some cases for members of her family.

Another important benefit with the hot summer months is free use of the local Prime hotel swimming pool complex.

Details on membership can be obtained through the Ramada Inn, New York Thruway & Exit 19 (Route 28), R.R. 2 — Box 212, Kingston, New York.

Included in the group picture here are members of St. John's choir.

Feels Data Will Clear President

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon will turn over "hard" evidence to the House Judiciary Committee which will prove his innocence in the Watergate cover-up, a high ranking White House official said today.

But the official, who declined to be identified, strongly indicated that Nixon will not fully comply with the subpoena for more than 40 taped conversations sought by the impeachment panel.

He also said that even if the House brings impeachment charges against Nixon, the President intends to travel to a summit meeting in Moscow the last week in June. He confidently predicted Nixon will not resign or be removed from office by impeachment.

"We're going to turn over absolutely what we think to be the hard evidence of all the totality of the President's knowledge and actions," he said. "There will be verbatim transcripts of materials directly from the tapes in extensive quantity."

Nixon intends to respond to the subpoena early next week when Congress winds up its Easter recess. The committee set a deadline of April 25 for the reply.

James D. St. Clair, the President's chief Watergate counsel, is in the process of making a legal assessment of the tapes to be released, and "he's very confident the hard evidentiary material" will clear Nixon, the official said.

The official conceded that the White House response might not be satisfactory to the impeachment investigators but insisted it will represent "all evidence available that deals with the President's actions."

"I believe if this matter is dealt with objectively and responsibly by all parties that I've seen nothing or heard nothing that suggests there is an impeachable offense," he said.

But he expressed concern that "emotional misconceptions" and the political climate might work against the President despite what the White House views as conclusive proof of his innocence of any wrongdoing.

On the personal side, the official said that it has been "very distressing" for Nixon to read reports of alleged involvement of his personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, and his best friend and Florida neighbor, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

How has the President been able to stand the pressure of Watergate?

"I think he can stand it because he's a very disciplined man. While he may feel that he would have done things differently in hindsight, he is not guilt-ridden. He believes he is the embodiment of the presidency and has a pivotal role. He has but one task ... to perform in a way on the record of his accomplishments. That's his overriding direction ..."

Nixon's relations with Vice President Gerald R. Ford are "excellent," he said and they are "close, extremely warm and constructive."

The official said that foreigners do not understand "this excessive introspection" on Watergate and to them "Watergate was a second rate burglary which would not justify shaking the foundations" of the republic.

...Money Going Back

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon has received $43,657.71 from well wishing citizens hoping to help him with his back taxes but Nixon is returning the money with an expression of appreciation, a White House spokesman said today.

Ken W. Clawson, director of White House communications, told reporters that Nixon has said he was going to abide by the Internal Revenue Service decision that he owes $467,000 in delinquent taxes and interest for the years 1969 through 1972 "and he feels he must pay every penny himself."

In response to a question, Clawson said, "Yes indeed, the President will have to borrow the money."

Clawson said that as of noon

Saturday the White House had received 5,536 letters and telegrams favorable to the President and 113 letters of criticism in connection with his tax problems.

Individual contributions ranged from 6 cents from a school child to $5,000 from a businessman. The contributions averaged about $10 each, Clawson said the President had looked over some of the mail accompanying the contributions and was "heartened and moved by the letters."

Clawson said about one-fourth of the unsolicited letters were anonymous. At the President's request, those donations, totaling $2,581.52 in mostly small cash contributions, will be turned over to the Red Cross to assist victims of the recent

A Watch On Michigan

SAGINAW, Mich. (UPI) — President Nixon and the nation watched closely today as an expensive and publicized election battle in Michigan's 8th Congressional District reached its decisive climax.

"Make no mistake," said Democratic candidate J. Bob Traxler, "this is a referendum on Richard Nixon." Traxler predicted he would win 53 per cent of the vote.

But Republican candidate James M. Sparling Jr., predicted he would win if the GOP turns out a heavy vote in this traditionally Republican district.

The polls were open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. EDT.

Nixon projected himself directly and personally into the campaign last week when he spent nearly five hours touring rural areas of the district, his first full-fledged political foray since Watergate.

County clerks in the seven counties of the district said it appeared 90,000 of 213,600 registered voters would go to the polls in the mostly rural area that has gone Democratic only once this century.

Latest polls show a close race with Traxler holding a 6 per cent edge, 39-33, with 28 per cent undecided.

Patty's Mom Just Can't Believe It

LA PAZ, Mexico (UPI) — The mother of Patricia Hearst said today she cannot believe her daughter took part in the $10,000 holdup of a San Francisco bank.

"I'm so upset I can't talk to you," Mrs. Randolph Hearst said. "We just heard it over the radio. It's so bizarre. I can't believe it. Please leave us alone."

The FBI said Miss Hearst was being sought as a material witness in connection with Monday's holdup of a branch of the Hibernia Bank. Two bystanders were shot during the robbery.

Earlier, Miss Hearst's mother, Catherine, said she and her husband "were still as convinced as ever that our daughter has not been converted to the revolutionary philosophy that those terrorists represent."

She added, however, "We don't know anything at all about the techniques involved in brainwashing. That's something highly professional in the field of psychiatry. I believe."

Mrs. Hearst was in Las Cruces with her husband, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner; two other daughters, a son-in-law and a grandson.

The Hearsts were expected to return soon to their home in Hillsborough, Calif.

Authorities said they identified the 20-year-old Miss Hearst from photographs taken of four rifle-toting women by a hidden camera inside the bank.

Miss Hearst, kidnapped 10 weeks ago, said in a tape-recorded message she was joining her captors and changing her name to "Tania."

A subpoena was issued for Miss Hearst, granddaughter of

Service Union Attacks Albany CSEA

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON
The Ulster County Organizing Committee for the Service Employees International Union (SEIU), in a statement released late Monday, severely criticized "the politicians from Albany CSEA (Civil Service Employees Association) who are completely out of touch with the needs of Ulster County employees."

At the same time, James Whelan, spokesman for SEIU, denied that the local unit is dissatisfied with either the Ulster County CSEA organization, or its president, Walter Parslow.

SEIU is attempting to oust CSEA as the bargaining unit for Ulster County employees. "As fellow employees," said

Whelan, "we'd be the last to criticize Wal Parslow, and I'm sure he feels the same way about us. We are united behind the same goals—$1.188 now for every employee, retroactive to Jan. 1, and an end to politicking in Ulster County."

Whelan stated that Parslow "is a strong and courageous leader who is doing his best to educate the politicians from Albany CSEA and the politicians from Ulster County. There is going to be an election between unions, and no matter who the eventual winner is, we will continue to work with Walt for the good of all Ulster County employees. . . . Hopefully, our public support of Walt won't bring down the dictatorial wrath of Albany CSEA upon him."

Whelan also had some biting criticism for Joseph Dolan, director of local government his group from Albany ignored employees. My fellow employees last our cries for help to obtain a decent wage. CSEA finally democratic process ruining members to ignore the advances made by the SEIU.

"Joe Dolan of Albany CSEA says that SEIU entered the picture last week," said Whelan. "The fact is that SEIU entered the picture soon, after Dolan and his crew of Albany politicians betrayed us at the budget hearing in November. Dolan isn't too fond of discussing the budget hearing or the following months when to a serious threat from SEIU raise; what they do have to fear to usurp their power." Whelan maintained that Dolan decide behind closed doors. "It is an Albany County doors," Whelan concluded by stating sympathetic to our cause than that SEIU, as opposed to CSEA, Pete Savago would be the will give county employees cause of the Albany County "truly local control."

'Modest Increase' for Ellenville

By WADE BURKHART

ELLENVILLE
Village taxes for Ellenville residents could go up $3.39 per thousand of assessed valuation, a "modest" increase according to a village trustee, and increases are expected in water and sewer rates as well for the 1974-75 village fiscal year.

The village's 1974-75 budget was unveiled at a public hearing Monday night, and it showed a total expenditure for the general fund of $732,688, up from last year's $683,665.61 figure. The amount to be raised by taxes in the proposed budget stands at $565,388, more than $40,000 higher than the 1973-74 figure of $512,420.61. If the proposed budget were to be passed unchanged, it would mean a tax rate per thousand of assessed valuation for village residents of $41.31. Trustee David Kramer termed the rise "modest." "We have pruned the budget down to the very bone," he said, and forecast problems during the coming year for the village because the budget might be too low already. "We hope to find a dollar or two we could save," said Mayor Robert Dowling, "but it doesn't look good."

The increases in the general fund are due mainly to higher salaries and benefits, and general inflation. The general fund increase would be even higher, but for a savings of $4,000 the village will not be giving to the town Narcotics Guidance Council since it no longer operates a store front, and about $6,500 saved on the land fill, which Village Manager Modris Pukulis said probably would be closed this year.

There were big increases in both the sewer and water funds. In the water fund, the village estimates it will have to raise an additional $25,000, or more than 20 per cent more than it raised in 1973-74. Both sewer and water rates are scheduled to jump.

The public hearing was recessed until next Monday. About the only criticism was directed to the village sewer system, those who spoke saying it had been mismanaged financially.

In other action, clean-up week in the village was scheduled for April 29-May 3. Anything but garbage and heavy appliances will be picked up. Dowling wanted to have a pickup scheduled for heavy appliances, but he was opposed by Trustee Bernard Wainer. "I think we ought to work on a premise of individual responsibility," said Wainer.

The board decided not to have the village's property in the Sam's Point area appraised until an offer is received from the Palisades Interstate Park Commission. The park commission has said it was interested in buying the land, but board members have said money has not yet been talked about between the two groups.

Little Comment In Rosendale

By TIM SCHUSTER

ROSENDALE
Very little comment was elicited from the public on the proposed Rosendale village budget for 1974-75, ostensibly because next to no tax increase would be necessitated, at Monday night's public hearing.

Mayor Robert Sheehan pronounced the village to be "solvent this year; we're in good financial shape." While the village board did not approve the $90,000 budget following the meeting, it is expected to do that within a short time.

Only two members of the public attended the hearing, and no sharp budgetary comments were made. It promises to raise the assessment a mere 16 cents per thousand dollars, from $20.69 to $20.85.

The general fund total is up about $7,000 from last year's $83,000 figure. The amount to be raised by local taxation will increase from $66,600 to about $70,000.

A one-shot item, legal services needed for preparation and applications for a village sewer system, will add another $2,500 available to the attorney in addition to his $1,500 annual fee.

And the only item that caused some comment from Trustee Barbara DeStefano was the proposed hike in the police budget from $5,800 to almost $11,000. A delayed pay hike of 50 cents per hour has been included in this figure.

The water fund, a self-sustaining item starting out this year with $4,400 in capital reserves, will total about $27,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices inched ahead today, apparently spurred by hopes for an approaching downturn in interest rates.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up a fraction, and gainers took about a 9-7 lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said some investors might have been encouraged by a prediction from New York's First National City Bank that short term interest rates could reach a low of 6 per cent by late summer.

Nets, Stars Eye Series Sweeps

THE BIG A — Kentucky Colonels' center Artis 'The Big A' Gilmore gets rebound over Billy Paultz of New York during ABA East playoff game Monday night at Nassau Coliseum. Nets won, 99-80, to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series. (UPI)

By United Press International
The New York Nets and Utah Stars have visions of a playoff sweep in their minds while Kentucky and Indiana are in desperate need of victories as both ABA division playoff sites switch to the underdogs' court Wednesday night.

Both the Nets and Stars, regular season champions in the East and West, moved ahead 2-0 in their division finals battle Monday night with victories.

New York, combining a harrassing, sagging defense with a free-wheeling offense, convincingly whipped Kentucky for the second straight game. The Nets were "damn near perfect," according to Colonel Coach Babe McCarthy in the opening game victory Saturday night but they were even better guarded by Julius Erving. Monday night, when they managed only three the rest of the way under Ladner's pressure, Dan Isel and Artis

Gilmore, to win 99-80. Reserve forward, Wendell Ladner, a mid-season acquisition from Kentucky, stole the show and stood the crowd of 13,726 on its feet with a tremendous all-around game, Billy Paultz diminished the presence of 7-foot 2 Artis Gilmore by boxing him out effectively.

Isel, who had a season-low nine points, hit only 4-of-14 shots and Gilmore 5-of-17. As a team, the Colonels hit 29 per

The third game will be in Louisville Wednesday night. Utah hit its last six points on free throws to beat Indiana 106-102 and the Pacers, who appeared to be gaining strength in the latter stages of the season, now face an uphill battle in defending their ABA championship. ## ABA Set To Raid Via Draft

NEW YORK (UPI) — Golden State's Cazzie Russell, Atlanta's Pete Maravich and anyone else of stature who has played out his option or is discontented with his current club will be the primary targets in Wednesday's first-ever American Basketball Association draft of National Basketball Association players.

"I expect most of our clubs will draft NBA players they think they can sign," said ABA Commissioner Mike Stoen. "The purpose of the draft is to organize our efforts at signing the best players available. I wouldn't expect clubs to be drafting big-name stars like Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who are tied to long term contracts. We'll be after the people whose contracts are up or who have only a year or two left on them."

Asked why a formal draft of NBA players is necessary since any team could have approached an NBA player at any time previously, Stoen said "there's a tendency to become lazy or spread your efforts too thin when you don't narrow your choices down. Now each team will have five players to think about and approach and maybe we'll get some better results."

Russell and Seattle's Mahdi Abdul-Rahman (Walt Hazzard) are two of the few NBA players who've played out their options this year and Maravich is reportedly dissatisfied with the Atlanta Hawks, and vice-versa.

Roy Boe, the New York Nets owner who put up $4-million to get Julius Erving on his team last summer and who once had Rick Barry under contract before a San Francisco court ordered him back to the Warriors, said he'll be looking for players "for the future."

"Even if they won't be available for two or three years," Boe said, "we're interested in them. I don't know how successful this draft will be but we're going to make the effort."

Most NBA stars are committed to long-term contracts, some as long as 10 years. The sky has been the limit for years already but the new offers the ABA will be making in its brazen raid on the NBA undoubtedly will reach into the millions for players of established quality.

Following the NBA draft, UCLA's Bill Walton, North Carolina State's David Thompson and Providence's Marvin Barnes will be among the top names revealed in the first two rounds of the already held secret college draft. Then the ABA will draft 10 more rounds of college players.

Rumors to the contrary, Stoen said, Walton is interested in playing pro basketball. He has not been signed yet by either league but his agent has been in contact with the ABA.

THE WINNER — Neil Cusack of Ireland, a student at Tennessee State College, crosses the finish line Monday to win the 78th running of the Boston Marathon in two hours, 13 minutes, 39 seconds — the third fastest time ever recorded for the event. (UPI)

WOMEN'S CHAMP — Miki Gorman, 38, of Los Angeles has blanket wrapped around her after she crossed finish line winning the women's part of the 78th Boston Marathon Monday. Wearing the victory wreath, her time was two hours, 47 minutes and 11 seconds, setting a women's division record. (UPI)

Europe's Marathon Mastery

BOSTON (UPI) — Mastery of Cusack's only serious rival, Tom Fleming of the New York of the course. Other than that, it wasn't too bad. But it was bad enough. The only thing I thought of when I reached the Hill was to get the hell over it and go on with the race. I wasn't aware of who was in 1970.

Fleming, who was among the early leaders, began closing the gap as the two runners entered the portion of the course which rises 180 feet in three and three-quarters miles in a series of four hills. By the time the two reached the top of the hills, Fleming had cut Cusack's lead from about 220 to 150 yards. But the effort proved too much for Fleming, who also finished second a year ago.

Jerome Drayton, Canada's best marathoner, finished third with a time of 2:15:33. The women's division winner was Miki Gorman, a tiny, 38-year-old housewife from Los Angeles, who finished in 2:47:11, 279th overall. The 86-pound world's woman marathon champ knocked 17:56 off the previous record set by Sara Mae Berman of Newton, Mass., in 1970.

Four other women broke the women's mark of 3:05:07 — Kathy Switzer of New York City, Christina Kofferschlager and Manuela Preuss of West Germany and Nina Kuscsik of the Suffolk Track Club.

The victory by Cusack gave him the title back to the Europeans, who have dominated the race in past years. Last year's event was won by Jon Anderson of the Oregon Track Club — the only American to win the event since 1957.

Will Bucks Be Flat?

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Larry Costello finished the hard work of preparing for the Chicago Bulls with a brutal 2½-hour scrimmage that left the Milwaukee Bucks a little bruised on the eve of the National Basketball Association's Western Conference finals.

The Bucks and Bulls meet tonight in the first game of the best-of-seven series and for Milwaukee it will be the first game action in nine days.

"We needed the rest," Costello said. "We should be ready to go full steam once the series begins."

Brave words, but some people have questioned whether nine days without game competition might not make the Bucks a little flat, either mentally or physically.

The Bulls, who finished off Detroit Saturday, had an off day Sunday, while the Bucks were going through their drill that left Curtis Perry with a sprained ankle, Mickey Davis with a badly bruised finger and Bob Dandridge with a slight pull of a groin muscle.

Chicago worked out Monday and traveled to Milwaukee Tuesday, by bus for the game. Dick Motta, the Bulls coach, made a prediction of sorts Monday when he said "I think the winner of our series will win it (the NBA title)."

"And I think we can beat the Bucks," Motta added. There was a strong indication that Motta planned at least one major strategy change for the series.

He planned to use center Tom Boerwinkle in an effort to stop the Bucks' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. Boerwinkle played only 24 minutes in the six regular season games against Milwaukee, but Motta apparently feels Boerwinkle is the only Chicago center with the size to cope with Abdul-Jabbar.

The series will match the Bucks' center-oriented offense with the Bulls forward-gear offense and two teams that ranked in the top three in the NBA in defense.

Milwaukee will try to close off the middle to Norm Van Lier and keep forwards Bob Love and Chet Walker from getting the ball. The Bucks will try to rebound well off their defensive board in order to get a fast break going. The Bulls send all five men to the boards and if the Bucks can get the rebounds they should be able to run.

The Bulls will have to stop Abdul-Jabbar from running wild and will have to be concerned with the outside shooting of Ron Williams.

A New Ballgame For NY, Montreal

The Chicago Black Hawks can put an end to the Stanley Cup plans of the upstart Los Angeles Kings tonight, but for the Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers it's a brand new ballgame.

After failing in its attempt to complete a four-game sweep of the Kings, Chicago returns home tonight with a comfortable 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven quarterfinal series. The Hawks, who used rookie Tony Veisor in goal in Sunday night's loss, will go back to Tony Esposito for the fifth game.

Esposito has shut out Los Angeles four times in nine games this season. The Montreal-New York series is deadlocked at two games each following the Rangers' comeback 6-4 triumph Sunday afternoon, and the fifth game will be played at Montreal tonight.

The two other quarterfinal series were completed Sunday. The East Division champion Boston Bruins wiped out the Toronto Maple Leafs in four games and the Philadelphia Flyers, who won the West title, turned in a similar sweep against the Atlanta Flames.

In the semifinals, Boston will meet the winner of the Chicago-Los Angeles series and Philadelphia opposes the Montreal-New York survivor. If the Black Hawks win tonight, they will begin their series against the Bruins at Boston Thursday night.

There was some dispute among the Rangers and Canadiens about the value of home ice for their series, which now amounts to a best-of-three with Montreal getting the extra home game.

"We know we have to win one in Montreal," said Ted Irvine of the Rangers. "But we won the first game there and we're confident we can do it again. If we can play our style of hockey and stay relaxed, we can do it."

Miki Not Surprised

BOSTON (UPI) — Looking cool and happy, petite Miki Gorman said she wasn't surprised at setting a women's marathon record of 2:46 last Dec. 2.

The 86-pound Los Angeles housewife crossed the finish line Monday in 2:47:11, winning the women's division of the 78th annual Marathon and slicing almost 18 minutes off the existing women's record. Sara Mae Berman of Newton, Mass., set the record in 1970, in the first women's race, in 3:05:07.

Mrs. Gorman, who stands a bit over 5 feet tall and is a native of Tokyo, said the race "was tough" but not as hard as she thought it would be. "It was tough," she said. "I was told it was going to be very hard, so it wasn't as hard as I thought."

"I wasn't surprised at my time," Mrs. Gorman said smiling. "My target time was 2:46."

In second place for women was 26-year-old Christa Kofferschlager of Wuppertal, West Germany, who also broke the 1970 record. Miss Kofferschlager, the European champion, finished in 2:52:57.

Two more record-breaking times were run by the third and fourth finishers, 35-year-old Nina Kuscsik of Huntington Station, N.Y., in 2:55:24 and Manuela Preuss of West Germany in 2:58:46.

The pixie-like Mrs. Gorman was met at the finish line with a kiss and a hug from her husband of eight years, Mike. "We were modestly confident that she would win," the Los Angeles stockbroker said. "We were prepared."

Gorman said he did a little running with Miki, "but she's the runner of the family."

"I encourage her as much as I can, like getting up at 5 a.m. to run," Gorman said. "I'm very proud of her. I think it's fantastic."

Mrs. Gorman, who said she ran about 15 miles while she was training for the marathon, began running "to gain weight." Mrs. Gorman, who is employed by the Los Angeles Athletic Club, company in L.A. She said there was a strong wind blowing throughout the race. "The wind was blowing from my back," she said. "That helped."

Bowa Made It, Lou Brock Didn't

By FRANK BROWN

AP Sports Writer

Two opposing runners tried for the extra base Monday night. Larry Bowa made it; Lou Brock didn't.

Bowa scored from first base on Del Unser's single in the eighth inning. Brock didn't score in the sixth after stealing second and watching Philadelphia catcher Bob Boone throw the baseball into center field.

"Brock tries to intimidate you on the bases," explained Philadelphia second baseman Dave Cash, who threw Brock out at the plate after chasing Boone's errant heave. "I saw him go, but I knew he couldn't outrun the ball."

And with Brock off the bases, the Cardinals couldn't outscore the Phillies—dropping a 3-2 decision despite two home runs by Reggie Smith.

In other National League games, the Atlanta Braves blanked the San Diego Padres 6-0 and the Houston Astros trimmed the San Francisco Giants 3-1.

In the American League, the Detroit Tigers nipped the Boston Red Sox 1-0, the Milwaukee Brewers topped the Baltimore Orioles 6-1, the California Angels blasted the Minnesota Twins 8-1, and the Oakland A's defeated the Chicago White Sox 4-3 in 13 innings.

Brock's daring play may have inspired the 155-pound Bowa's attempt.

"I've always made it a habit to run hard," said Bowa. "It was a gamble. If I'm out, I'm the goat."

But Bowa made good his gamble. Cash was on second and Bowa on first when Unser slapped a single off second baseman Ted Sizemore's glove. As the ball skittered towards the right field foul line, Bowa scampered homeward.

Cash had scored easily to give the Phillies a 2-1 lead, but Bowa's run proved the winner, as Smith slugged his second home of the game in the ninth inning to cut the margin to 3-2.

Braves 6, Padres 0

Phil Niekro befuddled the Padres on four hits with his flutternail, striking out 13 and walking three batters in leading the Braves to victory. He allowed only singles while his teammates jumped on Randy Jones for three runs in the first inning and another in the second.

Atlanta picked up three more runs in the sixth, with Niekro singling one run in himself.

Henry Aaron left the game after five innings with a stiff right shoulder. Aaron has three hits—all of them home runs—in 21 at-bats this season.

Astros 3, Giants 1

Larry Dierker pitched a three-hitter while Lee May and Olle Brown provided home run support in Houston's triumph. Dierker struck out eight and walked two to win his second game of the season.

He pitched only 27 innings last season due to arm trouble, but has come back strongly this season.

The Giants took a 1-0 lead in the first, but Houston tied it in the second before the home run hitters took over in the sixth and seventh.

Tigers 1, Red Sox 0

Norm Cash hit his first home run of the season in the fifth inning, and Joe Coleman pitched a three-hitter to carry Detroit past Boston.

Coleman pitched a two-hitter in his last outing—a victory over the New York Yankees—followed Monday by giving up only singles to Rick Miller, Doug Griffin and Mario Guerrero.

Brewers 6, Orioles 1

Clyde Wright, who couldn't even bend over last season because of severe pain in his back, pitched a four-hitter to help Milwaukee beat the Orioles.

A two-run single by Pedro Garcia and a throwing error by Baltimore starter Mike Cuellar contributed to a five-run Milwaukee second inning.

Angels 8, Twins 1

The Angels had 12 hits and took advantage of five Minnesota errors in crushing the Twins. Bill Singer cruised in with a five-hitter, striking out seven and surrendering only an unearned Twins run in the sixth.

The Angels, 7-2, are off to the best start in their 14-year history.

A's 4, White Sox 3

Gene Tenace lined a single to center in the 13th inning, scoring John Donaldson to give the A's their victory.

Donaldson, who needs only 49 more days in the major leagues to qualify for his pension, had opened the 13th with a checked swing single over shortstop. He moved to second one out later when Joe Rudi grounded to Bill Melton, then Tenace delivered his game-winning hit.

Dick Allen had given the White Sox a 3-0 lead with a home run in the third inning. The hit broke an 0-for-13 batting slump for the slugger.

Oakland charged back with two runs in the fifth inning and tied in the eighth on a sacrifice fly by Reggie Jackson.

Sportside

Charles J. Tiano, Sports Editor

Branch Rickey broke the color line in organized baseball in 1946 when he signed Jackie Robinson to a Montreal (International League) contract and a year later introduced him as the first black player in the biggies with the 1947 Brooklyn Dodgers.

This was a historic milestone in major league baseball and Rickey was properly enshrined among the Olympians in the game's history. He had challenged the white supremacy of baseball and made it stick.

Rickey did it on the highest level of the sport. But 20 years earlier, a local black man, Harold (Bo) Jones had done it without fanfare on the bush league level, if you will. No fanfare, no headlines, just a footnote in area baseball history.

In this second coming of The Great Gatsby and the return to respectability of nostalgia, there will be enough of around so that every ballplayer present can get a piece of the action when the remaining veterans of the City Baseball League induct seven of their ranks into the Hall of Fame Wednesday night at Tommy's Tavern.

All seven are worthy of the honor but one man—a black baseball pioneer—Harold (Bo) Jones will tower above them all. There was only one Bo Jones in Ulster County history and we were lucky to have him.

You have to go back to 1926 to pick up Jones' incredible career as a manager, promoter and booking agent par excellence. He organized the first all-black team in the county, the East Kingston Goldenrods, who played their games on the flat, open yards at Brigham's brick company.

Cannonball Lee Archer was the pitcher and Jeff Gordon the catcher for this pioneer nine that roamed the county and state in battle against white opposition. There were the Wilson brothers—Bill and Manzy—Lockett, Burton, Garner, Sutton, Dick Brown, his brother Ray Jones, and the greatest of the all—Harold (Had) Bassett, who propelled his teams farther than any player of his time—black or white.

Jones' booking empire was considerable, embracing such renowned independent teams as the Black Yankees, Detroit Clowns, House of David, Brooklyn Royal Giants, Ethiopian Clowns and Buck Ewing's Mohawk Colored Giants of Schenectady, to mention a few.

He had ties with the three most powerful syndicates of the pre-war era, like Nat Strong of New York, Syd Pollack of Tarrytown, who owned the Indianapolis Clowns, and Eddie Gottlieb of Philadelphia, who organized the great basketball teams like the Philadelphia Sphas, Hebrews and latter day 76ers and is still a power in the NBA.

Jones was not averse to using white ballplayers now and then if he thought they could help his Goldenrods. He booked Fred Davi's latter day Colonials around the state and into New England, forgotten places like West Stockbridge, Bennington, and Greenfield, Vt., with the crack Savit-Gems at Hartford, Conn. and Springfield, Mass. where the Bradley Toy Makers had a pitcher by the name of Vic Raschi, who later won a few for the New York Yankees.

Reminiscing a few days ago, the now retired trucker recalled that, "we played all over the county and in places like Hudson, Copake Falls, Philmont, Monticello, and Jeffersonville. No place was too far or too close."

"The guarantees ran between $50 and $75," he remembers, "but that was a lot more dough than it is today. Sometimes you took your chances and gambled on a 60-40 of the gate receipts for the winner."

Bo's wide-ranging booking savoris were not without their humorous sidelights. "Like the day we showed up in Tannersville and found two teams already on the field. We yelled louder than they did and they sent the other team home."

Like most booking agents, Bo was not bashful about advertising his product. Like the time he convinced (by long distance) the Oneonta management that he had the best black club outside the black leagues. Oneonta just happened to be one of the toughest independent teams in the east.

Oneonta was tipped off early when the Goldenrods arrived in one of those onboard trucks with no top. Strictly bush.

"They beat the hell out of us," Bo recalls. "They stopped the game at the end of seven innings, paid us our guarantee and chased us home. We were lucky we didn't get arrested for impersonating a ball club." The score? Oh yes, 21-1 Oneonta at the end of six.

And then there came the day, when Jones booked a team against the House of David at Tannersville. Big stuff, the House of David. But that was also the day the Ringling Brothers circus decided to stop over in the mountain village.

"It was no contest," Bo recalls. "Everybody in town was at the circus and there weren't 10 people in the ball park." We salute the other inductees—Big Joe Mahar, George Zadyay, Bob (Schoolboy) Bush, Phil (Waco) Peters, Toddy Uhl and cousin Amelio (Millie) Berardi. They were all great performers and deserve the honor. But the biggest man in the house tomorrow night has to be Harold (Bo) Jones.

Sawyers Win, 5-2; Jay Tops Kingston

SAUGERTIES

A strong pitching performance by Larry Panella and three RBI's by Scott Emery gave Saugerties High a 5-2 victory over Arlington here Monday in the opening game of the DCSL season.

Kingston meanwhile went hitless in dropping its opener, 2-1 to host John Jay. Ketcham stopped Lourdes, 5-1, and Roosevelt topped Poughkeepsie, 7-1 in other contests.

A gift from Bill Southworth, the Arlington Starter, gave Panella a new life after an unsteady first inning. Panella was clipped for two hits and a pair of runs in the top of the first, but Southworth had more problems and walked five of the first six Sawyers he faced.

Only one man was out when Gerry Seager came on to get out of the inning, and he and Panella locked up from there.

Panella blanked the Admirals the rest of the way on four hits and got the winning runs in the fifth. Nick Malgieri singled, Bob Cargoli beat out a bunt, and Panella loaded the bases on an infield error.

Emery then tried the squeeze play but whiffed and watched Malgieri tagged at the plate.

Emery made restitution with a two-run blow to right.

Panella drilled an RBI single in the sixth to end the scoring and set Arlington down in the top of the seventh to gain the win. Seager, who gave up seven hits and three runs, was the loser.

Mike Mohnach and Bob Alley combined to no-hit Kingston in a defensive battle in Wappingers. Kingston's Joe Primo and Marco Tiano only allowed two hits themselves, but both came off Primo in the fourth and produced the two Patriot runs.

A walk to Mohnach and a single by John Caruso set things up for Jay's Pete Longobardi. After pinch runner Dave New led a successful double steal, Longobardi nipped Primo for a ground ball hit that scored both runners.

The Maroons rallied in the fifth, loading the bases on walks to Dan Brown and Wal Dobrosky and an error on Primo's grounder. There were no outs, but Kingston had to settle for one run which came on Bill Costello's sacrifice fly.

"We hit it hard," said coach Ron Cole. "but John Jay did a good job defensively. They have a veteran team, but I thought we played them even."

Primo left after four with six strikeouts, seven walks and the loss. Tiano finished up with two strikeouts and two walks. Alley came on in the middle of the fifth inning to get the save.

Kings Stops NPS Twice

NEW PALTZ The inability to score runs continued to plague New Palts State's baseball team Monday as the Hawks dropped a twin-bill to undefeated Kings College of Briarcliff Manor, 2-0 in eight innings, and 6-3.

"We just can't hit when we have a scoring opportunity," moaned New Palts Coach Pete Kramer following his team's fifth springtime loss in six outings.

The Hawks wasted a fine opening game pitching effort by veteran Dean Briggs, who blanked Kings through the regulation seven innings, finally losing in the eighth on run-scoring singles by Dave Benner and Bill Merton after two men were out.

New Palts nearly won it in its half of the seventh when it put two men on base. But a line drive which appeared headed for the outfield was snared by first baseman Benner to send the game to the pivotal eighth. Briggs struck out six and walked only one in taking the hard-luck defeat. Cal Rose was even better for Kings, yielding only four New Palts safeties, walking one, and fanning three.

New Palts hit a bit more in the nightcap, but by the time it had scored two runs in the fifth, Kings already had staked itself to a four-run advantage off starter and loser Bob Spiers.

Benner and Merton continued to haunt New Palts in the second game, driving in five runs between them. Merton on two two-run homers and Benner on a solo shot.

The Hawks' pair in the fifth were "driven-in" by a force out and a bases-loaded attack. An error after a Mike Scammacca double produced the other NP run in the sixth. That marker left New Palts down by one, 4-3, but Merton's second homer in the top of the seventh iced the win for Kings.

Spiers struck out seven and walked four for New Palts. Winning pitcher Dan Nienhuist K'd five Hawks and passed two. Al White saved the win in relief for Kings.

The Hawks, 6-8 including last fall's games, visit John Jay College Thursday before returning home for a Saturday SUNYAC doubleheader against Buffalo State.

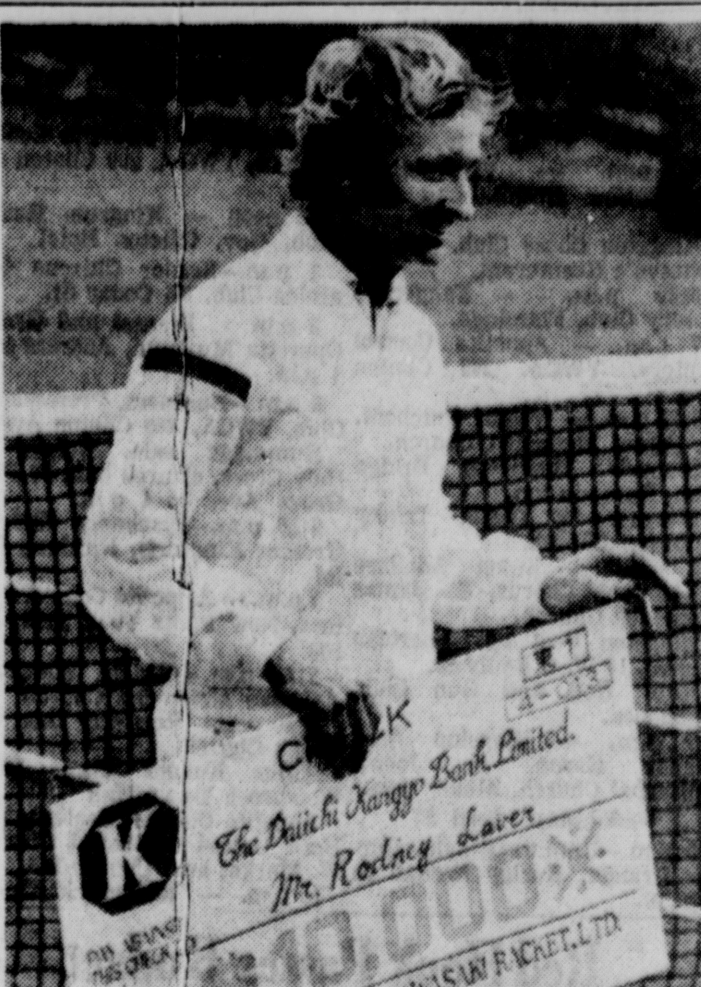

The Bengals disclosed late Monday that their star line-backer, Bill Bergey, was jumping the National Football League to play for the Virginia Ambassadors of the WFL.

But Bergey, an aggressive hard-hitter who along with tackle Mike Reid anchors the Bengals' defense, already is under contract to the Bengals for this season and must play out his option here in 1975 before joining the WFL in 1976.

The question of "integrity" over those next two years upsets Brown, who also runs the Bengals' front office in his capacity as general manager.

"This obviously creates an awkward position for the club," Brown said in a statement issued along with the disclosure. "It impairs the integrity of any player's performance when he is under contract to one club and paid by another."

"There was nothing we could do. He was already committed before he talked to us. It is a definite blow to the Bengals and their players' hopes for a championship season."

UCCC's Largeses Proves Undoing at Kingsborough

STONE RIDGE and Tochterman defeated Karl Hamilton and Janet Dunn, 7-5. College tennis team outnumbered its Kingsborough Community opposition Saturday, but that's what did the Senators in.

"They only had four men eligible," said Coach Pete Zeeh, "but since the match didn't mean anything in the conference I let our fifth and sixth players go in the second doubles."

The final doubles win by Kings' Steve Bently and Phil Tochterman gave UCCC a 4-2 setback and evened Ulster's overall record at 1-1.

Tom Krom of Ulster dropped the opening singles match to Arnold Yen, ranked near the top in the region seedings, 7-5. 6-4. Kings got another singles victory from Mitchell Morton who dumped Jerry Prendagast, 6-2, 6-1.

UCCC then evened the score on wins by Barry Temple and Craig Voegel. Temple blasted Bently, 6-0 and 6-1, and Voegel whipped Tochterman, 6-3 and 6-1.

"As you can see they (Temple and Voegel) could have easily handled the second doubles," said Zeeh who elected to take experience over a tie. Bently

Brown Blasts Bergey's Jump

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Cincinnati Bengals are victims of the World Football League's latest coup and Head Coach Paul Brown is angry.

The Bengals disclosed late Monday that their star line-backer, Bill Bergey, was jumping the National Football League to play for the Virginia Ambassadors of the WFL.

But Bergey, an aggressive hard-hitter who along with tackle Mike Reid anchors the Bengals' defense, already is under contract to the Bengals for this season and must play out his option here in 1975 before joining the WFL in 1976.

The question of "integrity" over those next two years upsets Brown, who also runs the Bengals' front office in his capacity as general manager.

"This obviously creates an awkward position for the club," Brown said in a statement issued along with the disclosure. "It impairs the integrity of any player's performance when he is under contract to one club and paid by another."

"There was nothing we could do. He was already committed before he talked to us. It is a definite blow to the Bengals and their players' hopes for a championship season."

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

TEACHER: (Q.) I am NOT a lesbian, but I like my social studies teacher very much. She is really not my teacher anymore. I was in her class last year but am not now. At first she liked me. I was nice to her, and complimented her often. But about February of 1973 she started ignoring me. I am still nice to her, but she still ignores me. I want her to like me like she did at first. Please tell me how to get her to. She is about 28. I am in the ninth grade.—Unhappy in Alabama.

(A.) I suspect you expected too much of this teacher and still do. A teacher has to be friendly with many students but must not be TOO friendly to any particular student. You want this one for a close personal friend and that is not practical.

You pushed too hard, and apparently are still pushing. Do not push. Do not expect more than she can give you. Just be friendly when you see her.

MOTHER SAYS NO: (Q.) I am 15 and am stuck on a girl who is 13. We really like each other, but her mother won't let me take her out. Should I go to her mother and talk to her?—No Luck in Louisiana.

(A.) Talking with her mother is an excellent idea. She will probably say (and I would agree with her) that your friend is too young for dates. But she may allow you to visit the girl, which I surely think would be a good start.

hunting for the enemy ace. He won the second trick with his king and saw that in all probability he would need a successful spade finesse to make his contract.

Then he led his king of trumps. East won with the ace and led a trump back. South won in his own hand and played his ace of clubs. Then he ruffed his last diamond and led a club from dummy.

The dear old Aunt Emma type sitting East had been paying no attention to the play and followed with her last low club. Now South put up his king and led his last club.

East won with the queen and South had the rest of the tricks since East had to lead a diamond to give a ruff and discard, or a spade away from his king.

Broome Hopeful Sees Alternatives

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON Sloan, a 29-year-old Binghamtonian with several years of political experience in Washington, D. C., told the Freeman that Nixon's economic policies over the past four years are no longer relevant and that an aggressive attempt should be made to get public federal funding for the 27th District and create new jobs in the public sector, bring the federal government back into housing and bring down interest rates which, he said, presently have a detrimental effect on property taxes. Married for about two years, Sloan, who has been the sole support of his mother, brother, grandfather since he was 16, and sister and now 100-year-old fully taught Americans, particularly their political leaders, "of the American housewife and farmer. They should say no to a policy which allows corporate development at the expense of community development and no to the soaring corporate profits at the same time wages are frozen."

Sloan said he will make available every 60 days a listing of all contributions and loans to his campaign. He also urges his opponents to disclose fully their financial position and divulge all sources of campaign contributions on a regular basis. The former consultant to the Educational Development Corporation and assistant director of development at Georgetown University, also suggested that his opponents, if now holding public office, submit their resignations immediately to any law firms, boards of profit-making corporations or any formal associations which might be viewed by the public as a conflict of interest.

A graduate of Long Island University, Sloan also attended Cornell University for two years. He feels that his work in Washington provides a mandate of working with political leaders and departments of government on matters concerning aid to education, health care services, manpower training, foreign policy issues, and help for the disadvantaged.

A special assistant to the president of the Council on Religion and International Affairs, on a part time leave of absence, Sloan feels that the voters have a chance this year of remaining silent and apathetic or saying no to rising inflation, escalating unemployment, abuse of the public trust and a tax system that allows the wealthy to pay nothing while the vast number of Americans are over taxed.

They should say no, he said, to a cosmetic policy of détente which allows the Soviet Union to reap inflated profits on

Vice-President Is Chided

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — WhiteHouse Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler says he does not believe it is appropriate for Vice President Gerald R. Ford to discuss his plans for the presidency in event President Nixon should leave office.

Ziegler made the comment Sunday in response to reporter's questions about an interview Ford gave to John Osborn of New Republic magazine in which he was asked about a possible future cabinet should he assume the presidency.

In discussing his vision of a Ford cabinet, the vice president made it clear that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger would stay on and Defense Secretary James Schlesinger would be dropped. He also said Ziegler definitely would not be asked to stay on as press secretary.

When asked about Ford's remarks, Ziegler said he did not think it was "appropriate" for Ford to discuss his possible assumption of the presidency. Speaking of Nixon, Ziegler said: "He is going to be around here until 1977."

He dismissed further questions, saying, "I don't think that's an appropriate thing to talk about on Easter Sunday. It's not appropriate."

Ziegler was questioned as he left the Key Biscayne Community Church where Nixon and his family attended Easter worship services. In the New Republic interview, Ford stressed that he did not believe there would be a midterm succession to the presidency and "he does not want it to happen."

Ford's press secretary, Paul Millich, has emphasized to House reporters that the vice president did not expect to be President, but was willing to answer speculative questions on what he would do as President because of the inherent responsibility of any vice president to be prepared for the White House.

Poll: More Believe Dean

NEW YORK (AP) — John W. Dean III has more credibility in regard to the Watergate cover-up than President Nixon, according to a Harris poll taken last month.

Forty-six per cent of those surveyed said they believed Dean more than Nixon, compared with 38 per cent who attributed more credibility to Nixon in a poll last July.

In last month's poll, 29 per cent said they believed Nixon more than Dean, the ousted White House counsel, and 25 per cent said they were not sure.

Last July, 37 per cent believed Dean's testimony and 25 per cent were not sure whom to trust. The latest poll was conducted March 24 to 29 among a cross-section of 1,495 adults.

In answer to a question whether they believed Dean's charge that Nixon knew about the Watergate cover-up, 52 per cent said last month they believed Dean. Last July, 50 per cent said they believed Dean's charge was true.

Republican and Southerners think Nixon is more truthful than Dean, Harris said. Among white Protestants over 50 years old, Dean and Nixon believers were evenly divided.

Not the biggest savings bank in New York State, but the one that's getting there fastest.
Of all 118 mutual savings banks from the tip of Long Island to Buffalo and from Plattsburgh to Binghamton, Heritage was Number 1 in growth rate in 1973.

We grew 25 percent in total deposits and 22 percent in total assets. More than any other savings bank, including the giants down city and up country.

This happened because more and more people put their confidence, and their dollars, in Heritage Savings Bank. Those dollars continue to earn for them the highest interest allowed by law; and we're doing our best to keep their confidence growing, too.

Come grow with Heritage. No matter how big we get, we'll always have room for your savings to get bigger.
